REVIVAL STATEMENT

Dear Sir:

The undersigned is the attorney of record in the present application and is employed by Johnson & Johnson, the parent company of the assignee of this application.

The undersigned has a prosecution docket of approximately 90 pending U.S. patent applications and a proportionately large foreign prosecution docket. In addition, the undersigned is involved in two litigation actions, due diligence and negotiation activities in several matters relating to the acquisition and/or divestiture of intellectual property rights, and in day-to-day client counseling activities. This level of activity has been at least constant, if not increasing, over the past year.

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office issued a Notice of Abandonment in this application on March 9, 2006, and this Notice appears to have been received by the Johnson & Johnson Patent Department docket clerks on March 10, 2006.

The Johnson & Johnson Patent Department docketing and document handling systems have been transitioning from paper-based to electronic systems since November 2004. Instead of forwarding file folders with attached Office Actions, the Johnson & Johnson Patent Department notifies attorneys of incoming Office Actions via email, and the actual documents are uploaded into an electronic database. In order to view the document, the attorney must access the electronic database to view and/or print out the document. Neither the paper file nor the paper documents are ordinarily delivered to the attorney. The undersigned regularly receives between thirty and 100 emails per day. There is no automatic notification to the attorney of pending final docket dates.

In March 2006, the undersigned received an email reporting the receipt of the Notice of Abandonment. Consultations with the client confirmed that the assignee had no intention of abandoning this application. The undersigned's workload has again kept the accompanying petition from being filed sooner.

Respectfully submitted,

/Joel A. Rothfus/
